4. Claims 1, 2, 4-16, 18-20, and 22-31 have been examined.

Reasons for Allowance

5. The following is the Examiner's statement of reasons for allowance.
6. Regarding the claimed terms, the Examiner notes that a "general term must be understood in the context in which the inventor presents it." In re Glaug 283 F.3d 1335, 1340, 62 USPQ2d 1151, 1154 (Fed. Cir. 2002). Therefore the Examiner must interpret the claimed terms as found on pages 1-24 of the specification. Clearly almost all the general terms in the claims may have multiple meanings. So where a claim term "is susceptible to various meanings, . . . the inventor's lexicography must prevail . . ." Id. Using these definitions for the claims, the claimed invention was not reasonably found in the prior art.
7. The primary reference Medvinsky (U.S. 2005/0022019) discloses as previously discussed. Medvinsky, however, does not teach at least "wherein the requested digital audio or video content is included within a particular body of content comprising a plurality of digital audio or video contents accessible by the client device; determining an allotted playback duration, granted to the device for playing back the particular body of content." Moreover, the missing claimed elements from Medvinsky are not found in a reasonable number of references.

Yet even if the missing claimed elements were found in a reasonable number of references, a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made would not have been motivated to include these missing elements in an embodiment in the Medvinsky disclosure because Medvinsky pertains to a system where the allowed playback duration is calculated on an individual piece of content. The alterations needed to make the Medvinsky invention perform as the claimed invention would be significant and non-modular because the alterations would be to the core processing of the invention.

8. Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled “Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance.”

9. Information regarding the status of an application may be obtained from the Patent Application Information Retrieval (PAIR) system.
